

Once upon a time, in a quiet village by the hills, there lived a small dragon named Ember. Ember loved to nap in the warm sun, dreaming softly of faraway skies.

One day, a fierce storm roared over the mountains, and Ember's home shook violently! Ember screamed in fear as the thunder crashed again and again.

But when the storm finally cleared, Ember found a hidden valley glowing with wonderful golden light. It was truly amazing, and Ember laughed with excitement, discovering every sparkling corner.

Yet far from home, Ember suddenly felt very small and very alone. Tears rolled down as Ember cried quietly, missing the warmth of home.

At last, Ember found the path back and rested peacefully under the gentle evening sky, calm and safe once more.
